BETTER RACING CONDITIONS

RETURN OF FAIR WEATHER IS WELCOMED AT COLUMBIA COURSE.

Tent Used for Betting Ring Is Blown Down and Speculation Goes On in the Open—Track Still Deep and Holding.

Columbia, S. C., December 27.—Clear, but cool weather made racing conditions a bit more agreeable today than has been the case here for the last two weeks and the patronage at the Fair Grounds this afternoon was really generous. A high wind was responsible for an "open ring" today, as the tent used for betting purposes was blown down early and several persons had narrow escapes from injury. The track was deep and holding and accounted for the upsets that came during the afternoon. Only two choices were successful, but all the winners were held at short odds for that matter.

The fifth race, engaging some fairly useful sprinters, was the best offering and it resulted in the defeat of the favorite, Sea Swell, by Oakley, his former conqueror. Conditions were held to be exactly to the liking of Sea Swell and he was confidently supported. He flattered his backers by maintaining a good lead until the last sixteenth, where Oakley made a determined and successful bid. Haldeman and Warner Griswell, both winners on the occasions of their preceding starts, accounted for the closing dash and the fourth race, respectively. L'Appelle, after many essays, finally made good when she got home first in the opener, for which Bonnie Bee was the favorite. Tom Shaw's lucky win in the second was somewhat due to jockey Gould's blundering ride on Dust, and Sir Edward upset calculations when he outgamed Ynca in the third race. Ynca was the medium for an unsuccessful betting coup.

The only official ruling handed out this afternoon was the suspension of jockey Gould for the remainder of the meeting. The suspension was imposed by starter James Milton after Gould got all but left at the post with Barn Dance in the fourth race.

A notice was posted in the secretary's office this morning from Francis J. Pons requesting horsemen to remain at Columbia until a few days before the meeting opens at Charleston. The reason for this request is that the contractors have been taxed to the limit hurrying construction work along in order to make up for time lost through the continuous rains of last week. Mr. Pons announced that, unless something unforeseen happens, the meeting will open on the date advertised, January 10.

Warner Griswell winner of the fourth race, was boosted $50 after his victory and his owner refused to protect him. The race was a $100 top and bottom affair and when W. B. Carson bid $150, he secured the horse.

A special train of six cars will leave Norfolk for Charleston over the Southern Railroad January 5. There are close to 100 horses at Norfolk awaiting the opening of the Charleston meeting and they are all ready to race.

The stewards as yet have failed to hand down a decision in regard to the running up of the horses Tom Massie and Uncle Jimmie Gray. The officials here are still trying to ascertain the exact nature of the ruling against William Shields.

COUNTING THE COST.

Because the anti-betting law has rendered racing but a memory in New York State, millions of dollars' worth of choice real estate is today worse than useless—worse than useless because it carries with it heavy taxation. It is further worse than useless because the fact that it is standing idle means a quarter-million-dollar cut in the annual revenues of the state.

An official high in the Jockey Club gave almost $12,000,000 as his conservative estimate of race track property in the Empire State. The approximate values of the tracks he estimates as follows: Belmont Park, $2,200,000; Gravesend, $2,700,000; Sheepshead Bay, $2,000,000; Aqueduct, $1,000,000; Jamaica, $800,000; Saratoga, $1,000,000; Kenilworth, $150,000; Empire City, $1,500,000. Total, $11,350,000. The taxes on these properties probably amount to $250,000. When racing flourished, the state also got another $250,000, representing five per cent. of the earnings of the tracks, so now the public treasurer's income from King Horse is just cut in half.

Big as this common loss to the racing interests and the public treasury is, however, the lovers of racing more keenly feel the loss of horses, trainers, jockeys and owners that once made this country one of the greatest racing nations on earth. They feel this loss not merly because real racing has through their departure practically disappeared (while betting flourishes triumphant), but more because they see in it the rapid decline of the American thoroughbred. Only a few days ago General Wood declared that the problem of furnishing cavalry remounts is becoming a serious one because of the disappearance of racing, and today August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey Club and probably the best-known racing man in the country, echoed and confirmed the statement, saying:

"General Wood's statement to Congress of the harm done in the army in the matter of remount horses for the United States cavalry, by the crusade against racing in various states of the Union, coming from such a high authority, needs no confirmation.

"The turf of this state was on a par with the turf of European countries in the character and the size of its stake races. It is only through such that great horses can be developed and owned. Destroy these, and our horses, and more than this, our highly efficient trainers and jockeys, will go to the only remaining fields where really important racing exists, viz., abroad, even if our owners remain at home."

Another element of loss to the country through the chilling effect the end of racing in New York has had in other states is the loss of employment of thousands formerly employed in breeding, training and operating the tracks. The money loss represented by the departure of stock is also tremendous. This would be all right, racing men point out, if it were a regular export business, but it is not a natural trade, and in their opinion points to the ultimate end of breeding on any large scale. Their contention is borne out, too, by the fact that the number of registered foals has fallen over fifty per cent. during the present year.—New York World.

YEARLING FILLY SELLS FOR $2,000.

Lexington, Ky., December 27.—William McDaniel, acting for his brother, Henry McDaniel, who is now at Juarez, today purchased from E. T. Graves, of this city, the coming two-year-old chestnut filly by Nasturtium—The Red Filly, by Trafalgar. This filly was broken by Charles Brown and worked a quarter in 23½, the first eighth in 11½, with 134 pounds up, and did it with astonishing ease. The price paid was $2,000.

JUAREZ LAYERS HARD HIT

YANKEE POOH SCORES AT LONG ODDS AFTER BEING WELL BACKED.

Bookmakers Disregarded Tip That Was in Circulation on the Horse—Cold Wave Leeds to Installation of Heating Plant in Ring.

El Paso, Tex., December 27.—Under more favorable weather conditions the Juarez attendance picked up considerably today. The regulars were greatly reinforced by an influx of the citizens of El Paso and they kept the layers of odds busy all afternoon.

The bookmakers received a hard jolt when Yankee Pooh won the opening race. The tip was out early in the morning, but the wise men of the chalk disregarded it and marked up 20 to 1. Steady and persistent support finally forced down the odds to 10 to 1 at post time and the "good thing" won, defeating Barney Oldfield, Little Marchmont and Black Mate in a drive. The last named ran out in the stretch just as he was moving up into a commanding position and thereby lost all chance.

Jockey Carter carried off the riding honors by putting over a brace of winners.

The management, on the alert to provide for the comfort of their patrons, are inclosing the betting ring and installing a steam heating plant in it.

PITTSBURG PHIL AND HIS CAREER.

The story of Pittsburg Phil (George E. Smith) and his eventful career has been rehearsed over and over again, yet the relating of his wonderful luck never loses interest. He was employed by the Armstrong Cork Company, located on the banks of the Allegheny River at the foot of Twenty-third street, this city. He was a frequenter of Price's poolroom, then in operation on Fifth avenue, a few doors below the Grand Opera House, where he made only moderate wagers for a long time. He seemed to have excellent judgment and much luck in picking the winners almost from the start. He did not try to "beat" every race, but would wait until what he felt sure was a "good thing," and then play for what he could stand. Many days he would not make a wager.

After he had got on his feet, as the saying is when we get the money, he made the purchase of King Cadmus, the son of Kingfisher and Carita, with a view of entering racing as an owner himself. Smith, it is said, made a "killing" of between $85,000 and $100,000 in one race with this horse. He was not very fortunate in winning with his own horses, but did so on other people's.

Smith was slender, smooth-shaven, and about thirty years old when he began his racing career, and looked mare like a young clergyman than a race horse backer and owner. He had so much luck and won so much money that he found Pittsburg too small a town for him to operate in (although at that time Pittsburg had some high rollers along that line), so he went to New York, where he could be in closer touch with the horses themselves, as well as be able to get larger bets down than he could here, and get better odds for his money at the same time.

Luck followed him, and soon he became known as one of the great plungers of the turf. Some one dubbed him "Pittsburg Phil," and the name stuck to him always. For a long time he was considered one of the best judges of "form" in the east. He gave "touts" a wide berth, and depended mostly on his eyesight and judgment. He would sit in the grandstand, watch the horses warm up in the exercise just before coming to the post, and then he bet on what he liked.

In one season he is credited with having won $240,000. Then he branched out, bought horses and ran them in his own name. Then his luck turned, and several times he was reported as ruined, but up he would bob again. In the early part of the season of 1891 he had a run of ill luck, and lost, it is said, $125,000. The winnings of most plungers are much exaggerated, but Phil won on King Cadmus all that is claimed. He bought the colt at the Belmont sale in 1890 for $4,000, and told his friends that he had secured a bargain, and when he would tell anything his people knew he was not far wrong.

He did not hurry the youngster, and sent the colt to Saratoga in charge of his brother Will, who trained Phil's horses. At the Springs he ran twice, being third once and unplaced the other time. When he went down state to Morris Park, King Cadmus showed speed in has races, but failed to win right off. King Cadmus, however, managed to catch the judge's eye once, and then he paid up for losing times. Not many days after that, if I remember aright, Phil made a bet of $50,000 with a man in the Hoffman House, New York, on a race to be run the next day or a few days later, each taking a certain horse, and Phil won. It is said his estate was worth over $2,000,000, the majority of which was in gilt-edged stocks and property; the bulk of this went to his mother, but his brother William, it seems, got a goodly portion, with the stipulation he must not bet on the horses.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

GALOPIN'S BREEDER IS DEAD.

The death of W. Taylor Sharpe, a well-known English breeder and owner of thoroughbreds, took place December 15. The deceased, who was in his sixty-ninth year and had been for a long time a sad invalid, acquired world-wide fame as the breeder of Galopin, whose reputation as a race horse and sire was equalled by few and excelled only, perhaps, during the last sixty years by that of his son, St. Simon, and of Stockwell. Galopin was by Vedette, out of Mr. Taylor Sharpe's mare, Flying Duchess, and was foaled at the Diss Stud in 1872. In after years many people gave credence to tales that Galopin's sire was really Delight, but some years ago the deceased in a letter showed conclusively that Delight was at his Bannuber Stud all through the season of 1871, whist Flying Duchess was in residence at the Diss Stud during the same period and was mated with Vedette. No doubt the stud records were loosely kept at Diss, and it was that, probably, which gave rise to the rumors crediting various stallions other than Vedette with the paternity of Prince Batthyany's 1875 Derby winner. Apart from Galopin, the deceased bred a number of other smart performers, inclusive of Ella Tweed, with which he won the Brocklesby Stakes, and of Grey Tick, which was sold as a yearling at one of the Cobham sales, and after passing through several hands carried off the Cesarewitch for Sir W. Bass.

NOTES OF THE TURF.

Winter speculation on next year's Derby commenced with the acceptance of 700 to 200 about Lomond, which closed a slightly better favorite than White Star, against which 400 to 100 was twice booked. In each case the rate was again tendered, and "bar two" odds of 600 to 100 were offered.

The stewards of the English Jockey Club have given notice that the Committee of Handicappers (Messrs. Dawkins, Keyser and Lee) will not work as a committee after May 18 of next season, and for the remainder of the season Mr. Dawkins has undertaken to make the handicaps for Newmarket, Ascot, Epsom and Goodwood, but will not accept handicapping work for any other meeting.
